ΑΝΘΟΛΟΓΙΑ

ΙΓ

ΕΡΙΓΡΑΜΜΑΤΑ ΔΙΑΦΟΡΩΝ ΜΕΤΡΩΝ

1.—ΦΙΛΙΠΠΟΥ

Πεντάμετρον μόνον

Χαῖρε θεὰ Παφίη· σὴν γὰρ αἰὲ δύναμιν κάλλος τ' ἀθάνατον καὶ σέβας ἱμερόεν πάντες τιμῶσιν θνατοὶ ἐφαμέριοι ἐν πᾶσιν μύθοις ἔργοισίν τε καλοῖς· πάντη γὰρ πᾶσιν σὴν δηλοῖς τιμῇν.

2.—ΦΑΙΔΙΜΟΥ

Τρίμετρον

Καλλίστρατός σοι, Ζηνὸς ὦ διάκτορε, ἔθηκε μορφῆς ξυνὸν ἥλικος τύπον·
Κηφισιεὺς ὁ κοῦρος· ὧ χαρεῖς, ἄναξ,
Ἀπολλοδώρου παῖδα καὶ πάτραν σάω.

3.—ΘΕΟΚΡΙΤΟΥ

Χωλὸν τρίμετρον

Ὅ μουσοποιὸς ἐνθάδ' Ἴππῶναξ κεῖται.
εἰ μὲν πονηρός, μὴ ποτέρχεν τῷ τύμβῳ· εἰ δ' ἐσσι κρήγυός τε καὶ παρὰ χρηστῶν, θαρσέων καθίζει, κῆν θέλης, ἀπόβριξον.

BOOK XIII

EPIGRAMS IN VARIOUS METRES

1.—PHILIPPUS

(Pentameters only)

HAIL, Paphian goddess! For all mortals, creatures of the day, ever honour by all fair words and works thy power and immortal beauty and loveable majesty; for ever and to all dost thou manifest thy dignity.

2.—PHAEDIMUS

(Iambic trimeters)

CALLISTRATUS dedicated to thee, Hermes, messenger of Zeus, this statue of a youth of like age with himself, the common image of thee and him. The young man is of the deme of Cephissia. Rejoicing in his gift, O Lord, protect the son of Apollodorus and his native place.

3.—THEOCRITUS

(Season iambic trimeters)

HERE lies Hipponax, the maker of verse. If thou art wicked, approach not the tomb, but if thou art good and comest of a good stock, sit thee down fearlessly, and if thou be so minded, fall asleep.

GREEK ANTHOLOGY

4.—ΑΝΑΚΡΕΟΝΤΟΣ

Τετράμετρον

Ἀλκίμων σ', ὦ ῥιστοκλείδῃ, πρῶτον οἰκτείρω φίλων ᾤλεσας δ' ἥβην, ἀμύνωτ πατρίδος δουληίην.

5.—ΦΑΛΑΙΚΟΥ

Τρίμετρον μείουρον ἢ κόλουρον

Νικῶ δίαυλον. Ἀλλ' ἐγὼ παλαίων.
Ἐγὼ δὲ πεντάεθλον. Ἀλλ' ἐγὼ πύξ.—
Καὶ τίς τύ;—Τιμόδημος. Ἀλλ' ἐγὼ Κρής.
Ἐγὼ δὲ Κρηθεύς. Ἀλλ' ἐγὼ Διοκλῆς.—
Καὶ τίς πατήρ τοι;—Κλείνος. Ὡσπερ ἄμμιν.—
Ἐμπερ δὲ νικῆς;—Ἰσθμοί.—Τὸ δ' ἔμπερ;—
Νέμειον ἂν λειμῶνα, καὶ παρ' Ἡρα.

6.—ΤΟΥ ΑΥΤΟΥ

Ἐνδεκασυλλάβιον τρίμετρον οὕτω καλούμενον

Τοῦτ' ἐγὼ τὸ περισσὸν εἰκόνισμα τοῦ κωμωδογέλωτος, εἰς θρίαμβον κισσῷ καὶ στεφάνοισιν ἀμπυκασθέν, ἔστασ', ὄφρα Λύκωνι σᾶμ' ἐπείη.
ὅσσα γὰρ †καθύπερθε λαμπρὸς ἀνὴρ· μνάμα τοῦ χαρίεντος ἔν τε λέσχῃ ἐν τ' οἴνῳ τόδε κᾶτι τοῖς ἔπειτα ἄγκειται, παράδειγμα τᾶς ὀπωπᾶς.

BOOK XIII. EPIGRAMS 4-6

4.—ANACREON

(Trochaic tetrameters)

I PITY thee, Aristoclides, first among all my valiant friends. Thou didst lose thy young life, defending thy country from enslavement.

5.—PHALAEUS

(Iambic trimeters with the last syllable missing)

(1) I CONQUERED in the stadion. (2) And I in wrestling. (3) And I in the pentathlon. (4) And I in boxing. And who art thou? (1) Timodemus. (2) And I Cres. (3) And I Crethus. (4) And I Diocles. And who was thy father? (1) Cleinus. (2), (3), and (4) And ours too. And where didst thou win? (1) At Isthmus. And thou where? (2) In the Nemean grove and by the home of Hera.¹

6.—BY THE SAME

(Hendecasyllable trimeters)

THIS admirable portrait of the comedian, crowned for a triumph with ivy and garlands, I set up that it might stand as a monument on Lycon's grave. For this memorial of him who was so charming in familiar talk and over the wine, this presentment of his features, is offered by me to preserve the memory among posterity also of how the glorious man entertained us. (?)

¹ i. e. in the Heraea at Argos. The dialogue is between a passer-by and the statues of four brother athletes. There seems to be something missing at the end.

GREEK ANTHOLOGY

7.—ΚΑΛΛΙΜΑΧΟΥ

Κωμικὸν τετράμετρον

‘Ο Λύκτιος Μενόιτας τὰ τόξα ταῦτ’ ἐπειπὼν ἔθηκε· “ Τῇ, κέρσας τοὶ δίδωμι καὶ φαρέτρην, Σάραπι· τοὺς δ’ οἰστοὺς ἔχουσιν Ἑσπερίται.”

8.—ΘΕΟΔΩΡΙΔΑ

Τετράμετρον Ἀρχιλόχειον

Ἐκ δολιχοῦ τόνδε¹ σφυρήλατον, ὡς τάχει κρατήσας, παῖς Ἀριστομάχειος ἀνείλετο χάλκεον λέβητα.

9.—ΚΑΛΛΙΜΑΧΟΥ

Πεντάμετρον βακχικόν. ἔστι δ’ οὐ τέλειον τὸ ἐπίγραμμα
Ἐρχεται πολὺς μὲν Αἰγαῖον διατμήξας ἀπ’ οἰνηρῆς Χίου
ὑμφορεύς, πολὺς δὲ Λεσβίης ἄωτον νέκταρ οἰνάνθης ἄγων.

10.—ΤΟΥ ΑΥΤΟΥ

Τετράμετρον ἑκαίδεκα συλλαβῶν. οὐ δὲ τοῦτο τέλειον
Ἄ ναῦς, ἃ τὸ μόνον φέγγος ἐμὶν τὸ γλυκὺ τᾶς ζοᾶς ἄρπαξας, ποτὶ τὲ Ζανὸς ἱκνεῦμαι λιμενοσκόπῳ . . .

¹ He had taken part in an expedition against Cyrene, in the territory of which was Hesperis or Berenice (now Benghazi).

BOOK XIII. EPIGRAMS 7-10

—CALLIMACHUS

(Comic tetrameter)

MENOETAS of Lyctus dedicated his bow with these words: "Here, Serapis, I give thee the horn bow and quiver, but the men of Hesperis have the arrows."¹

8.—THEODORIDAS

(Archilochian tetrameter)²

FROM the long race did the son of Aristomachus, having conquered by fleetness of foot, win this tripod of beaten brass.

9.—CALLIMACHUS

(Bacchic pentameter.³ The epigram is not complete)

FROM Chios, rich in wine, ploughing the Aegean comes many a jar, and many a one that brings us nectar, flower of the Lesbian vine.

10.—BY THE SAME

(Tetrameters of sixteen syllables.⁴ This also is imperfect)

O SHIP, who hast carried off the only sweet light of my life, I beseech thee by Zeus, the watcher of the harbour

² Metre of Horace, Od. i. 4.

³ "Trochaic pentameter" would be more correct.

⁴ Metre of Horace, Od. i. 18.

BOOK XIII. EPIGRAMS II-14

11.—SIMONIDES

(Hyporchematic pentameters)

A. Who dedicated this portrait? B. Dorieus of Thurii. A. Was he not a Rhodian by descent? B. Yea, before he was exiled from his country. Many deeds of might he had done by his terrible hand.¹

12.—HEGESIPPUS

(Hexameters followed by iambic trimeters)

Woe worth that day and that fatal moonless night, that dreadful roaring of the wind-beaten sea, that cast ashore the ship on which Abderion, so sweet a soul, was making ineffectual vows to the gods. For she, an utter wreck, was carried by the waves on to the rugged rocks of Seriphus, whence he, having got him fire from the hands of his city's reverend hosts, came to his home Abdera, lapped in a brazen urn.

13.—ANONYMOUS

(Hexameter followed by a pentameter and afterwards by an iambic trimeter)

THIS did Pyres, the dear son of Polymnestus, dedicate, having vowed the tithe to Triton-born Pallas; Cresilas of Cydonia wrought it.

14.—SIMONIDES

(Hexameter followed by a pentameter, two iambic trimeters, and a hexameter)

HERE lies Dairdes of Argos, the stadion racer, who gained honour by his victories for his fatherland, rich in pasture for horses. Twice did he conquer at Olympia, thrice at Delphi, twice at the Isthmus, and fifteen times at Nemea, and it is not easy to count his other victories.

15.—ANONYMOUS

(Two hexameters followed by a pentameter)

I AM Dicon, the son of Callimbrotus; but I was victor four times at Nemea, twice in the Olympian games, five times in the Pythian, and thrice in the Isthmian. I crown the city of Syracuse.¹

16.—ANONYMOUS

(Three hexameters followed by a pentameter)

KINGS of Sparta were my fathers and brothers, and I, Cynisca,² winning the race with my chariot of swift-footed horses, erected this statue. I assert that I am the only woman in all Greece who won this crown.

17.—ANONYMOUS

(Hexameter followed by iambic dimeter)

IPHION, whom water from Pirene once fed,³ painted me with his own hand.

19.—SIMONIDES

(Hexameters followed by verses of nine syllables)

THIS statue is the offering of Nicoladas of Corinth, who conquered at Delphi in the foot-race, and at the Panathenaea gained prizes, jars of oil, in five contests one after another; and in holy Isthmus the shore of the Sea-lord witnessed him win the prize thrice in succession; and in Nemea he gained three victories, another four in Pellene, and two in the precinct of Zeus Lycaeus; and likewise in Tegea, and in mighty Epidauros, and in Thebes, and the land of Megara; and in Phlius, winning the stadion and pentathlon, he made great Corinth rejoice.

20.—BY THE SAME

(Hexameters followed alternately by a comic tetrameter wanting two syllables and an Archilochian scazon trimeter)

OPIS, giving glory to his fatherland, the holy city of Athena, offered this pleasant flute, child of the black earth,² that he wrought by the help of Hephaestus, to Aphrodite, having been vanquished by love for beautiful Bryson.

Complete iambic trimeters followed by dimeters from the hyporchematic pentameter)¹

22.—PHAEDIMUS

(Complete trimeters followed by epodes—shorter verses—consisting of heroic tetrameters scazon in the penultimate syllable)

O KING, Far-shooter, curb the force of thy bow with which thou didst lay low the Giant's³ might. Open not thy wolf-slaying quiver, but aim at these young men the arrow of Love, that strong in the friendship of their youthful peers, they may defend their country; for it sets courage afire, and He is ever of all gods the strongest to exalt the hearts of the foremost in the fight.⁴ But do thou, whom the Schoenians⁵ reverence as their ancestral god, accept the gifts Melistion proffers.

But in the land of his fathers he got an empty tomb; and by it his mother, Promethis, like in her suffering to the mournful bird halcyon, bewails evermore her son, calling "aiai," telling how he perished before his time.

(The same tetrameter followed by a tetrameter similar to $\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup$, but with an extra syllable : in the fourth foot it has not an iambus but an anapaest¹)

OFTEN in truth, in the choruses of the tribe Aca-mantis, did the Hours, the companions of Dionysus, shout in triumph at the ivy-crowned dithyrambs, and overshadow the bright locks of skilled poets with fillets and rose blossoms. The chorus now hath set up this tripod as a witness of their Bacchic contest. Antigenes was the poet who trained those men to sing his verses,² and Ariston of Argos, clearly pouring dulcet breath into the Doric flute, nursed well the sweet voice of the singers. The leader of their honey-voiced circle was Hipponicus, son of Struthon, riding in the chariot of the Graces, who established for him among men a name renowned, and the fame of glorious victory, for the sake of the violet-crowned Muses.

29.—NICAENETUS

(An iambic trimeter following a hexameter)

WINE is a swift horse to the poet who would charm, but, drinking water, thou shalt give birth to naught that is clever. This Cratinus said,³ Dionysus, and breathed the perfume not of one bottle but of all the cask ; therefore was he great, loaded with crowns. and his forehead, like thine, was yellow with the ivy,

¹ This account of the metre of the second verse is wrong, the metre being $\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup|\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup-\bar{\cup}-\cup$, i.e. the second half is a dactylic logaoedic.

² The epigram is most probably the work of the poet Antigenes himself. ³ cp. Hor. Ep. 1. 19, 1.

ARITHMETICAL PROBLEMS, RIDDLES, ORACLES

Not only Nos 116-146, but the rest of the arithmetical problems in this book may be put down to Metrodorus, if we may judge by the style. This Metrodorus was probably a grammarian of the time of Constantine the Great.

The problems, which are all of the same nature, can be easily solved by algebra. The Scholiast gives somewhat cumbrous arithmetical solutions.

PROBLEM

Polycrates Speaks

BLESSED Pythagoras, Heliconian scion of the Muses, answer my question: How many in thy house are engaged in the contest for wisdom performing excellently?

Pythagoras Answers

I will tell thee then, Polycrates. Half of them are occupied with belles lettres; a quarter apply themselves to studying immortal nature; a seventh are all intent on silence and the eternal discourse of their hearts. There are also three women, and above the rest is Theano. That is the number of interpreters of the Muses I gather round me.

Solution : 28 ($14 + 7 + 4 + 3$).

2.—PROBLEM

On a Statue of Pallas

I, PALLAS, am of beaten gold, but the gold is the gift of lusty poets. Charisius gave half the gold, Thespis one-eighth, Solon one-tenth, and Themison one-twentieth, but the remaining nine talents and the workmanship are the gift of Aristodicus.

Solution : 40 ($20 + 5 + 4 + 2 + 9$).

3.—PROBLEM

CYPRIS thus addressed Love, who was looking down-cast: "How, my child, hath sorrow fallen on thee?" And he answered: "The Muses stole and divided among themselves, in different proportions, the apples I was bringing from Helicon, snatching them from my bosom. Clio got the fifth part, and Euterpe the twelfth, but divine Thalia the eighth. Melpomene carried off the twentieth part, and Terpsichore the fourth, and Erato the seventh; Polyhymnia robbed me of thirty apples, and Urania of a hundred and twenty, and Calliope went off with a load of three hundred apples. So I come to thee with lighter hands, bringing these fifty apples that the goddesses left me.

4.—PROBLEM

Solution: $240 (120 + 30 + 20 + 12 + 8 + 50)$.

Answer : The double flute. The sailors are the fingers.

15.—THE LAWS OF THE IAMBIC SENARIUS

SIX feet in so many positions make the metre or an iambus, the spondee, the tribrachys (∪ ∪ ∪), the dactyl, the anapaest, the pyrrhic (∪ ∪), and the iambus ; and each has its proper habitation. The pyrrhic's is the end ; those feet whose first syllable is long are admitted to the first, third, and fifth place. The others walk in every road alike ; the king, the iambus, alone is admitted to any place he wishes.

16.—CHARADE

MY whole is an island ; my first the lowing of a cow, and my second what a creditor says.

Answer : Rhodes (dos = give).

THOU seest me . . . Dionysus. A double womb bore me, and my father presides over memory. He first generated me, a merciless creature carrying a beast, and having slain the dear son of my sister, the fawn, I no longer carry a beast, but the sky, and sea, and earth, and the holy company of the gods ever imperishable.

Answer : Obscure, but there is in the last lines evidently a reference to a "panther," which, on losing its last syllable (ther = beast), becomes pan (the universe).

25.—ENIGMA

I MISS the eyes of Scylla, which the Sun himself and the Moon extinguished. My father feared me when I was a girl, and now dead I am washed by two perennial rivers which my head sends forth on the rugged hill.

Answer : Niobe. By the eyes she means her twelve children slain by Apollo (the Sun) and Artemis (the Moon). They are called the eyes of Scylla because Scylla was supposed to have six heads.

26.—ENIGMA

I WAS once yellow, but when cut I become whiter than white snow. I rejoice in a sweet and fishy bath, coming first to the company of the banqueters.

Answer : A linen towel. Line 4 alludes to the practice of washing and wiping the hands at table before beginning to eat.

27.—ENIGMA

SEEKING in the sea the maiden who was once a lion, thou shalt find the mother-in-law of Hecuba, the murderer of her children.

Answer: Thetis, who was transformed into a lion in her attempt to escape from Peleus. Hecuba was a name given to Medea, whom, according to late tradition, Achilles is said to have married in the islands of the blessed.

28.—ENIGMA

FROM the sea I have a fishy parentage, and one contest can bring me to the games of Dionysus. In the stadion, after anointing my body with oil, I slew by my hands the son of Demeter. In the second place, I send out from both sides of me a mass of giants, pulled by many hands.

On the Sphinx

A CREEPING, flying, walking maiden ; a lioness lifting up feet not her own as she ran ; she was a woman-winged in front, in the middle a roaring lioness, and behind a curling snake. She ran away neither making a trail nor as a woman, nor either bird or beast in her whole body ; for she seemed to be a maiden without feet, and the roaring beast had no head. She had an irregularly mixed nature, made up of imperfect and perfect parts.

64.—The Sphinx's Riddle on Man

THERE is a thing on earth two-footed, and four-footed, and three-footed, whose name is one, and it changes its nature alone of all creatures that move creeping on earth or in the air and sea. But when it moves supported on most feet, the swiftness of its legs is at its weakest.

72.—Oracle given to Rufinus on his enquiring how he should exact an Oath from his own Skipper

WHEN Titan at daybreak mounts above the earth on his path, having dispelled by his rays the injuries of night, and radiant Dawn sheds the light of a new day, then lead the man to the sea-shore and make him stand on the sea-washed beach, looking towards the light of the sun's rays. Let him place his right foot in the water and hold it in the surge, while he plants his left on land, and touching with one hand the sea and with the other the dry land, let him swear by Heaven, by the vast Earth, by the harbours of the sea, and by the life-giving Lord of the heavenly fire. For such an oath not even do the gods, the splendid lords of Heaven, dare to dishonour by their mouths.¹

THOU askest me for Arcadia. It is a great thing this thou askest; I will not give it thee. In Arcadia are many acorn-eating men who will prevent thee, but I myself do not grudge it thee. I will give thee foot-beaten Tegea to dance in, and to measure out with a rope the goodly plain.

WHEN in Siphnos there is a white senate-house and the market-place has a white brow, then it is for a prudent man to beware of a wooden ambush and a red herald.

¹ From Herodotus iii. 57, where see the explanation. The prophecy, delivered at an early date, was fulfilled as follows: The prytaneion and agora of Siphnos were now built of white marble. A Samian squadron came to Siphnos and sent in a ship an embassy requesting a loan of money. On this being refused, the Samians landed and defeated the Siphnians, exacting ten times the sum. The wooden ambush and red herald is the ship, all ships being then painted red.

O WRETCHED people, why sit ye still? Fly to the ends of the earth, leaving your houses and the lofty summit of the wheel-like city. For neither shall her head remain in its place, nor her body, nor the feet at her extremity, nor the hands, nor is any of the middle left, but all is undiscernible; for she is laid in the dust by fire and by keen Ares driving his Syrian chariot. Many other fortresses shall he destroy, not thine alone, and give to devouring fire many temples of the immortals, which now stand with the sweat running down them, and shaking with fear, and on the summit of their roofs rains black blood foreshowing inevitable disaster. But get you gone from the holy place and steep your souls in calamity.

93.—Another

PALLAS may not appease the wrath of Olympian Zeus, beseeching him with many words and subtle counsel. And this word I will tell thee again, setting it in adamant. For when all else is taken that the boundary of Cecrops and the dell of divine Cithaeron contain, a wooden wall doth far-seeing Zeus give to Athena the Triton-born, to remain alone unstormed, and that shall profit thee and thy children. Abide not in quiet the horsemen and the great host of footmen that cometh from the land, but turn thy back and give way: yet there shall come a day when thou shalt stand and meet them. O divine Salamis, thou shalt be the death of the children of women, either when Demeter is cast abroad or when she is gathered in.

their ships, and as foretelling a victory at Salamis. The ambiguous last lines might equally well have foretold a defeat.

95.—*Oracle*²

YE fools, ye complain of all the tears that Minos sent you in his wrath for avenging Menelaus, for that the Greeks did not join you in exacting vengeance for his death in Camicus, but ye helped them to take vengeance for the woman who was carried off from Sparta by a barbarian.

96.—*Another*³

YE inhabitants of Sparta with broad dancing-floors, either your great and renowned city is sacked by the Persians, or this befalls not, but the guard of Lacedaemon shall mourn the death of a king of the house of Heracles. For him, the Persian, neither the might of bulls nor of lions shall arrest, for he hath the strength of Zeus, and I tell you he will not give in before he rend and devour one or the other of these.

FROM Cadiz to the city of the seven hills the sixth of the road is to the banks of Baetis, loud with the lowing of herds, and hence a fifth to the Phocian soil of Pylades—the land is Vaccaean, its name derived from the abundance of cows. Thence to the precipitous Pyrenees is one-eighth and the twelfth part of one-tenth. Between the Pyrenees and the lofty Alps lies one-fourth of the road. Now begins Italy and straight after one-twelfth appears the amber of the Po. O blessed am I who have accomplished two thousand and five hundred stades journeying from thence! For the Palace on the Tarpeian rock is my journey's object.

Solution . The total distance is 15,000 stades (say 1,500 miles); from Cadiz to the Guadalquivir, i.e. to its upper waters, 2,500, thence to the Vaccae (south of the Ebro) 3,000, thence to the Pyrenees 2,000, thence to the Alps 3,750, thence to the Po 1,250, thence to Rome 2,500.

AFTER staining the holy chaplet of fair-eyed Justice that I might see thee, all-subduing gold, grow so much, I have nothing; for I gave forty talents under evil auspices to my friends in vain, while, O ye varied mischances of men, I see my enemy in possession of the half, the third, and the eighth of my fortune.

Solution : 960 talents ($480 + 320 + 120 + 40$).

TAKE, my son, the fifth part of my inheritance, and thou, wife, receive the twelfth; and ye four sons of my departed son and my two brothers, and thou my grieving mother, take each an eleventh part of the property. But ye, my cousins, receive twelve talents, and let my friend Eubulus have five talents. To my most faithful servants I give their freedom and these recompenses in payment of their service. Let them receive as follows. Let Onesimus have twenty-five minae and Davus twenty minae, Syrus fifty, Synete ten and Tibius eight, and I give seven minae to the son of Syrus, Synetus. Spend thirty talents on adorning my tomb and sacrifice to Infernal Zeus. From two talents let the expense be met of my funeral pyre, the funeral cakes, and grave-clothes, and from two let my corpse receive a gift.¹

Solution : The whole sum is 660 talents ($132 + 55 + 420 + 12 + 5 + 2 + 34$).

THE sun, the moon, and the planets of the revolving zodiac spun such a nativity for thee; for a sixth part of thy life to remain an orphan with thy dear mother, for an eighth part to perform forced labour for thy enemies. For a third part the gods shall grant thee home-coming, and likewise a wife and a late-born son by her. Then thy son and wife shall perish by the spears of the Scythians, and then having shed tears for them thou shalt reach the end of thy life in twenty-seven years.

Solution : He lived 72 years ($12 + 9 + 24 + 27$).

I AM a tomb and I cover the lamented children of Philinna, containing fruit of her vainly-travailing womb such as I describe. Philinna gave me my fifth portion of young men, my third of maidens, and three newly married daughters; the other four descended to Hades from her womb without participating at all in the sunlight and in speech.

Solution : She had 15 children ($3 + 5 + 3 + 4$).

THIS tomb holds Diophantus. Ah, how great a marvel! the tomb tells scientifically the measure of his life. God granted him to be a boy for the sixth part of his life, and adding a twelfth part to this, he clothed his cheeks with down; He lit him the light of wedlock after a seventh part, and five years after his marriage He granted him a son. Alas! late-born

THIS is Polyphemus the brazen Cyclops, and as if on him someone made an eye, a mouth, and a hand, connecting them with pipes. He looks quite as if he were dripping water and seems also to be spouting it from his mouth. None of the spouts are irregular; that from his hand when running will fill the cistern in three days only, that from his eye in one day, and his mouth in two-fifths of a day. Who will tell me the time it takes when all three are running?

MISCELLANEA

WE may consider that the miscellaneous epigrams (some of them from inscriptions) Nos. 1-20 were collected by Cephalas, as it has been pointed out that Constantinus of Rhodes, to whom we owe Nos. 14-17 and who no doubt also transcribed No. 11, was a contemporary of Cephalas, both holding ecclesiastical offices at the Court of Constantine Porphyrogenitus (A.D. 911-959). Nos. 21, 22, 24-27 consist of the so-called Technopaegnia, included also in some MSS. of the Bucolic Poets. They are poems written in enigmatic language, and each formed so as to represent the shape of some object. Nos. 28-40 are chiefly Christian poems, probably again collected by Cephalas, as two are by his contemporary, Arethas, Bishop of Caesarea, and Cometas, the author of 36-38 and 40, seems also to belong to the same period.

4.—Sepulchral Inscription at Nicaea, near the Lake, on the Obelisk

VAUNT, Nicaea, the tomb that mounts to the sky, the pyramid that is nigh to the sun, which contains buried in the vast monument the hierophant celebrated among the living. Of Sacerdos¹ is this great sepulchre; Severa's is this monument whose neighbour is not Hell, but Heaven.

5.—On the Same

CELESTIAL is this monument, with its point of beaten gold, of a man who has been given a tomb equal to his life, approaching the stars; and the tomb holds a man, like to none other, the ministrant of the heavenly rites, him who upraised from the ground his city in ruins, whose were the highest gifts of intellect and speech, him for whom there was strife between Attica, that laid his corpse on the pyre, and his country that received his bones in her bosom.

6.—On the Same

It was built for the great Sacerdos, this great and all-resplendent tomb, the terrestrial star of Lake Ascania, flashing back the rays of the sun, and within it lies in peace the spirit, who both stretched out his right hand to his fallen country and bound about his brows the holy crown that, received from the father, bloomed again for the son; him whose dear corpse
his country received, whom Attica purified by fire, and whom every city of Greece venerates.

¹ This priest, Sacerdos, upon whose tomb Nos. 4-8 were inscribed, was evidently a pagan, not a Christian.

I am he who also saved from hell, by the generosity of Roman Zeus,¹ my country cast down by earthquake. I died far away from Ascania, and in the Attic land, the mother of my race, I mounted on the pyre. My son, who bears his grandsire's name, designed this magnificent monument for me, and virtue looks on both.

ONE wedlock was theirs, a common life; nor in death, ever mindful of each other, were they divorced. Thee, Sacerdos, thy holy rites and thy manly works shall proclaim all the days of man's life, but I, Severa, shall grow more renowned than Penelope of old through my husband, my son, my virtue, and my beauty.

WIDE is the glory of ancient Lindos which received Atrytone on the heavenly slopes of its citadel, and greater yet on earth waxed the city's lovely renown, when filled with the dark-green gifts of the virgin goddess. For now to those who look on the rocks that bear fruit the spot cries aloud that it is the flourishing home of Athena. fistula), the monument of Syrinx, the object of his ardent love; he who (at Marathon, where Pan is said to have personally helped the Athenians) quenched the valour of the Persians (who bear the same name as Perseus, the slayer of his grandfather Acrisius) and freed Europe from them. To him Theocritus (he plays on his name, taking Theocritus as meaning "judger of gods"), also called Simichidas, offered the beloved possession of the wallet-bearing pastoral poets (πέρδς, "blind"; πῆρα, "wallet"). Taking joy in this pipe, O Pan, goat-mounter, hoof-footed, beloved of Lydian Omphale, son of the thief Hermes with no known father (since Penelope lay with all the suitors), play sweetly on it to the dumb maiden, the invisible Muse, Echo.

PHOCIAN Epeius, in gratitude for her strong device, gave to the virile goddess Athena the axe with which of old he laid in ruin the high, god-built towers, then when he burnt to ashes with fire-breathing doom the holy city of the Dardanidae and dashed down from their seats the gilded kings, a man who was not reckoned among the chieftains of the Achaeans, but one of low degree who carried water from the pure fountains. 24.—SIMIAS. WINGS OF LOVE

Look on me, the lord of broad-bosomed Earth, who stablished the Heaven¹ elsewhere, and tremble not if, little though I be, my cheeks are heavy with bushy hair. For I was born when Necessity was ruler, and all creeping things and those that move through the sky yielded to the dire decrees of Earth. But I am called the swift-flying son of Chaos, not of Cypri^s or of Ares, for in no wise did I rule by force, but by gentle-voiced persuasion, and earth and the depths of the sea and the brazen heaven yielded to me. I robbed them of their ancient sceptre and gave laws to the gods.²

² This is the Eros of the old cosmogonies and of early speculation, the ordering and unifying power which succeeded to Chaos, here called actually the son of Chaos, elsewhere the son of Night (Arist. Birds, 695) always one of the oldest of the gods. See Plato, Symp. 178 b.

25.—BESANTINUS. THE ALTAR¹

THE black cloud of victims does not, like purple, dye me with its reddening stream, and the knives sharpened on the Naxian stone spare the flocks of Pan; the sweet-scented juice of the Arabian trees² does not blacken me with its curling smoke. Thou seest in me an altar not composed of golden bricks or the clods of Alybe,³ nor let that altar be like to me which the two gods born in Cynthus built, taking the horns of the goats that feed about the smooth ridges of Cynthus.⁴ For together with the children of Heaven⁵ did the earth-born Nine rear me, the Muses to whose art the King of the gods granted immortality. And mayest thou,⁶ who drinkest of the spring that the Gorgon's son⁷ opened with a blow of his hoof, sacrifice and pour on me libations in abundance sweeter than the honey of Hymettus' bees. Come to meet me with a confident heart, for I am pure of the venomous monsters which lay hid on that altar in Neae of Thrace that the thief of the purple ram⁸ dedicated to thee, Triton-born, hard by Myrina.⁹

¹ The altar of horns on the hill Cynthus, in Delos, was said to have been built by Apollo and Artemis themselves when children. See Callimachus' Hymn to Apollo, v. 60.

² Not, it would seem, the Graces, but the three Heliconian Muses, Mneme, Melite, Aoede.

³ i.e. Hadrian, himself a poet.

⁴ Pegasus, who set the fountain of Hippocrene running with a blow of his hoof.

⁵ Jason, who was said to have built the altar in the island of Neae, from which issued the snake that bit Philoctetes. On this altar the following poem, "The Altar of Dosiadas," is supposed to have been inscribed. Besantinus, of course, is alluding to Dosiadas' poem.

⁶ Not the town in Aeolis, but another name for Lemnos.

When Philoctetes, who slew Paris and burnt the body of Heracles (whom Zeus begat during the three nights he lay with Alcmena) saw me, he cried out in pain, for the snake that casts its skin hurt him with its poison. And him, in the island of Lemnos where he tarried, Odysseus, the husband of Penelope, the thief of the Palladion, who went twice to Hades, and Diomedes, the son of Tydeus (who ate the head of Melanippus), for the sake of his arrow, fatal to Troy, persuaded to come to the Trojan land, thrice laid waste (by Heracles, the Amazons, and the Greeks).

On Christ Crucified

CHRIST once was nailed naked on the cross, in the midst, with robbers crucified on either side. And His Mother, grieving sore, bewailed Him loudly, standing by and sobbing, and another, His virgin companion.¹ And the wayfarers mocked and reviled Him in His misery, calling Him a man of no account or courage. And the wicked and bloodthirsty people of the Jews offered Him, when He thirsted, an abominable drink, filling a bitter cup with vinegar, the potion of death. But Christ, outstretched there, was silent and resisted not, Christ, the Son of Mary and an immortal Father. A proud man shall be as an infant when he reflects on this in his heart and sees it in pictures; for God is better than men, but man in no way better than God.²

EVEN if swift fate has put out the lamp of my life, depriving my torch of its light, yet did my evil demon satisfy the fury of his spite in making all my life wretched. He made me a widow early just as my breasts were swelling, nor did I look on a fair child at play, the sweet jewel in a parent's arms. Therefore did mourning overcome me by the cruel torch of decline. In my twenty-third year did this tomb, the hospice of my race, receive me. There did my aged parents weave for all a dirge, tearing their grey hair, and the company of Anna's noble brothers groaned as they bethought them fondly of the brilliance of her beauty.

THE tomb shall not have power to obscure the austere virtue of Anna, the grace of her kindness, her submissive ways towards her parents (for modesty was with her like a great teacher and guided her), the brilliant characteristics of her race, her resistance, owing to love of her husband, to nature which tried to shake her unsupported widowhood by force, but was overcome by her clinging to the Higher Powers (whence the bright crowns shining forth in testimony of her worth in refusing to re-wed), and finally her frankness. For the mouths of all can by no means forget her who gave so good an admonition by her life. But if they do, this inscription placed beside her tomb shall speak more than all.

FEBRONIA must surely have given some token of her sympathy to the spirits below likewise, if there, too, the poor have need of the wealthy; for not even there do the souls of the generous forget entirely their beneficence. But in any case the space of our life¹ would suffice to send her forth to the holy bridal chamber of Christ, whom she took as the bridegroom of her chastity, keeping bright her lamp with the oil of love for the poor. Learn that this is the monument of her long, long sleep.

I, COMETAS, finding the books of Homer corrupt and quite unpunctuated, punctuated them and polished them artistically, throwing away the filth as being useless, and with my hand I rejuvenated what was useful. Hence writers now desire to learn them not erroneously, but as is proper.

³ This Cometas, who lived probably at about the date of the compilation of the Anthology (tenth century A.D.), made, as we see from this and the following epigram, a corrected text of Homer.

40.—COMETAS

WHEN the good Son of the Almighty, chiefest of men, who rules over all mortals and immortals, said to the wise fishermen, His disciples, "Lazarus our friend has not left yet the light of the sun, while the vast earth covers him these four days," yet speechless Lazarus lay, his lips closed in silence, his body and bones and goodly flesh decaying; and his soul, taking flight from his limbs, went to Hades. Unspeakable sorrow did he cause to his friends, and most of all to Martha and Mary, his own sisters; for from their hearts they loved their brother, who lay without hurt, thus lifeless in the midst of the dead. His fate they lamented with wailing and dirges, remaining outside the grave and seated by the tomb. Till the sun made the third day on earth, so long was Lazarus decaying lifeless among the dead. But when the fourth rosy dawn came then did the Son of great God thus speak to His noble friends who were born of God, who were superior in wisdom to all men, whom He loved marvellously as if they were the Sons of God, from whose tongues flowed speech sweeter than honey and words like to winter snow-flakes: "O my noble-hearted friends and all who have God within them, list to me, since God is with us, that I may say what my heart within my breast bids me. Come, let us haste with all speed to Bethany, where Lazarus' soul left him, that I may have eternal renown, for I go to raise my friend even from Hell." And those excellent and noble-hearted men thus answered him back: "Let us go as Thou biddest, O like to Thy Father." They spoke, and He himself went on leading His disciples, and they in haste followed the steps of the Almighty; as the tribes of the multitudinous bees go forth, ever continuing to issue from the hollow of the rock, so did the disciples follow great God. But when they reached the tomb much bewept; then his sisters and friends, casting themselves at His feet, besought Almighty Christ: "We clasp Thy knees, O King who dwellest in the highest mansions; the Lazarus Thou didst love is gone to the bowels of Hell. If Thou hadst been here, Hades, the King of the dead, had never dared to abide, for Thou art far more puissant. But even so if Thou wilt, Thou canst raise him up again." And then the Most High answered, "Where lieth he?" Then swiftly they went close to the tomb. When then they showed him and the doleful tomb to God He said, "Haste ye and take off the cover of the tomb" But when the doleful tomb of the dead man lay open, then He who was

But when Lazarus heard the voice of God the Word, he came forth with decaying limbs bound in grave-clothes, breathing, and stinking. 43.—On the Same

CONSTANTINUS deserved a golden gift for his merit, for his art has produced none like to him. While HERE they set up again in brass and silver Porphyrius, who formerly, too, stood here in brass owing to his merit, when he had ceased from his labours and unbuckled his belt. Old man, after receiving honours from abroad, thou didst at the loud request of the people take up thy whip again and dost rage furiously on the course, as if in a second youth.

45.—On Julianus the Charioteer

THE Emperor himself, the whole People, and the reverend Senate, by a common vote erected this statue of Julianus, whose mother and nurse was Tyre, a charioteer who had won many crowns. For in his old age he had retired from the course, leaving regret even to all in whom love of his rivals was strong.

46.—On Porphyrius the Charioteer

THIS Porphyrius was an African, and he alone on his victorious chariot gained crowns of all varieties. For Queen Victory, divided among the factions¹ of the people, changed fortune altogether with colour and robe. But it suited the Blues most to have him. and his statue was erected by them of gold because of his merit, of brass because of his pains.

¹ For the factions of the circus, see Gibbon, ch. xl. Porphyrius had originally driven for one of the other factions. Ever since he began to drive for the Blues, they were victorious.

47.—On the Same

THIS Porphyrius was born in Africa, but brought up in Constantinople. Victory crowned him by turns, and he wore the highest tokens of conquest on his head, from driving sometimes in one colour and sometimes in another. For often he changed factions and often horses. Being sometimes first, sometimes last, and sometimes between the two, he overcame both all his partisans and all his adversaries.

48.—On Uranius the Charioteer

THE Emperor, regarding him as the equal of the famous charioteers, the son of Faustinus¹ and Faustinus himself, erected beside both the statue of Uranius, to whom the people, owing to his countless victories, gave the name of lordly Pelops. Someone looking on these will say truly, "How doth God ever lead like to like!"²

49.—On the Same

To thee alone, both during thy racing days and after thou hadst ceased to contend, did Victory give this reward thrice, Uranius, from each faction. For formerly among the Blues thou didst wear the crown for twenty illustrious years. But then thou didst cease from horsemanship, and the faction of the Greens sought thee. To them thou didst give victory, and they to thee this reward.

On the Calydonian Boar

It is of bronze, but see what strength he contrived to show, the sculptor of the boar, moulding a living beast with the bristles standing up on its neck, with sharpened tusks, grunting and darting terrible light from its eyes, all its lips wet with foam. No longer do we marvel that it destroyed a chosen host of demi-gods.

EPIGRAMS OF THE PLANUDEAN ANTHOLOGY NOT IN THE PALATINE MANUSCRIPT

THE Anthology of Planudes is in seven Books, the contents of which are as follows: I. Declamatory and Descriptive Epigrams; II. Satirical Epigrams; III. Sepulchral Epigrams; IV. Epigrams on monuments, statues, etc.; V. Christodorus' description of the statues in the gymnasium of the Zeuxippus (= Anth Pal., Book II.), and a collection of Epigrams from the Hippodrome in Constantinople; VI. Dedicatory Epigrams; VII. Amatory Epigrams. As will be seen, while the other Books contain only a small number of Epigrams not included in the Palatine MS., almost the whole of Book IV. is absent from the latter, and we can only conclude that a Book of the Anthology of Cephalas was missing in the MS. of which the Palatine MS. is a transcript.

WE orators would have combined to honour Theodorus with golden portraits of eternal memory, had he not avoided gold even when it is in paintings.

I AM Proclus, the son of Paul, a Byzantine whom the Imperial Court stole from the Courts of Law where I flourished, to be the faithful mouth of our mighty Emperor.¹ This bronze announces what reward my labours had. Son and father held all the same offices, but the son surpassed the father by his consular fasces.

IF such a Leo (lion) had chanced to face Heracles,
this would not have been his twelfth labour.

51.—MACEDONIUS THE CONSUL

WE honour the boy Thyonichus with this statue, not that thou mayst see by the beauty of this monument how comely he was, but, good Sir, that thou mayst learn his achievement, and be emulous of such enthusiasm. This is he whose legs never gave way owing to fatigue, and who vanquished every adversary, him of his own age, the younger one,
and the elder one.

But know that I am Heras of Laodicea, the all-round fighter, crowned by Smyrna and the oak of Pergamus, by Delphi, Corinth, Elis,¹ Argos, and Actium. But if thou enquirest as to my victories in other contests thou shalt number also the sands of Libya.

FULL of hope is he, and he shows that the breath on the tip of his lips comes from deep within the hollow of his sides. The bronze is ready to leap forth to gain the crown, and the base shall not hold it back. O Art, swifter than the wind!³

On a Statue of Prupus

BEWARE from afar off of the guardian set up in the kitchen-garden. I am such as thou seest me, O thou who goest past me, made of fig-wood, not polished with shagreen, nor carved by rule and measure, but by a shepherd's self-taught chisel. Laugh foolishly at me, but take care not to damage Eucles' property or you may have to laugh grimly too.

87.—JULIANUS

THE flame that gives life to Art was my gift, and now from Art and fire I get the semblance of ceaseless pain. Ungrateful of a truth is the race of mankind, since in return for his benefit to them this is what Prometheus gets from workers in bronze.

88.—BY THE SAME

HOMER's book calls brass a metal that is unconsumable by age, but the sculptor has visibly confuted it. For come here and look at Prometheus groaning; look at the torments of the brass consumed from its inmost vitals. Wax wroth, O Heracles, that after the deed of thy quiver¹ the son of Iapetos suffers ceaseless pain.

92.—ANONYMOUS

The Labours of Heracles

FIRST, in Nemea he slew the mighty lion. Secondly, in Lerna he destroyed the many-necked hydra. Thirdly, after this he killed the Erymanthian boar. Next, in the fourth place, he captured the hind with the golden horns. Fifthly, he chased away the Stymphalian birds. Sixthly, he won the Amazon's bright girdle. Seventhly, he cleaned out the abundant dung of Augeas. Eighthly, he drove away from Crete the fire-breathing bull. Ninthly, he carried off from Thrace the horses of Diomedes. Tenthly, he brought from Erythea the oxen of Geryon. Eleventhly, he led up from Hades the dog Cerberus. Twelfthly, he brought to Greece the golden apples. In the thirteenth place he had this terrible labour: in one night he lay with fifty maidens.

YE rustic ploughmen of Nemea, tremble no more at the deep roaring of the lion, slayer of bulls. It has fallen by the hands of Heracles, the supreme achiever of emprises, its throat strangled by his death-dealing hands. Drive out your flocks to pasture; let Echo, the denizen of the lonely glen, again hear the sound of bleating. And do thou, clothed in the lion-skin,¹ again arm thee with the pelt, appeasing the spite of Hera who hateth her lord's bastards.

As Heracles was when Theiodamas met him of old, even so did the artist portray the son of Zeus dragging off the ox from the plough and lifting up his club on high, but he did not paint the wicked murder of the ox.¹ Yea, perchance he drew Theiodamas with a plaintive cry on his lips, hearing which Heracles spares the steer's life.²

¹ Heracles in Rhodes killed the labouring ox of Theiodamas to cook and eat it.

² i.e. possibly the artist wished to convey the impression that Heracles spared the ox.

O Niobe, weeping for the heavy day that gave thee birth, thou shalt be a lifeless rock consumed by sorrow.

NIOBE, daughter of Tantalus, hearken to my word, the announcer of woe; receive the most mournful tale of thy sorrows. Loose the fillet of thy hair; thy male children, alas! thou didst bear but to fall by the woe-working arrows of Phoebus. Thy boys are no more. But what is this other thing? What do I see? Alack! alack! the flood of blood has overtaken the maidens. One clasps her mother's knees, one rests on her lap, one on the ground, and the head of one has fallen on her breast. Another is smitten with terror at the shaft flying straight to her, and one stoops before the arrows, while the rest still live and see the light. And the mother, who erst took pleasure in her tongue's chatter, now for horror stands like a rock built of flesh.

On the Picture of Medea in Rome

THE art of Timomachus mingled the love and jealousy of Medea as she drags her children to death. She half consents as she looks at the sword, and half refuses, wishing both to save and to slay her children.

136.—ANTIPHILUS

WHEN the hand of Timomachus painted baleful Medea, pulled in diverse directions by jealousy and love of her children, he undertook vast labour in trying to draw her two characters, the one inclined to wrath, the other to pity. 147.—ANTIPHILUS

On a Painting of Andromeda

THE land is Ethiopian; he with the winged sandals is Perseus; she who is chained to the rock is Andromeda; the face is the Gorgon's, whose glance turns men to stone; the sea-monster is the task set by Love;¹ she who boasted of her child's beauty is Cassiopea.² Andromeda releases from the rock her feet inured to numbness and dead, and her suitor carries off the bride his prize.

148.—ARABIUS SCHOLASTICUS

On the Same

DID Cepheus or the painter expose Andromeda on the rocks, for the judgment of the eye is indecisive? And was the monster drawn as we see it on the curving crag, or did it rise out of the neighbouring sea? I see: a skilled man made these things; he was indeed clever thus to deceive our eyes and our wits.

On a Picture of Helen

THIS is the lovely form of Argive Helen, whom of old the cowherd carried away, spurning Zeus who protects host and guest.

¹ i.e. the slaying of it.

² There were two versions of the story: in one Cassiopea boasted of her own beauty, in another of Andromeda's. Antiphilus follows the latter.

On a Painting of Dido

THOU seest, O stranger, the exact likeness of far-famed Dido, a portrait shining with divine beauty. Even so I was, but had not such a character as thou hearest, having gained glory rather for reputable things. For neither did I ever set eyes on Aeneas nor did I reach Libya at the time of the sack of Troy, but to escape a forced marriage with Iarbas I plunged the two-edged sword into my heart. Ye Muses, why did ye arm chaste Virgil against me to slander thus falsely my virtue?

203.—JULIANUS, PREFECT OF EGYPT

On the Eros of Praxiteles

PRAXITELES, who stooped his proud neck for my sandals to tread on, wrought me with his captive hands. For, working me in bronze,² he gave me, that very Love that was hidden within him, to Phryne, an offering of friendship. But she again brought it to give to Love; for it is lawful for lovers to bring Love himself as a gift to Love.

204.—PRAXITELES

PRAXITELES perfectly portrayed that Love he suffered, taking the model from his own heart, giving me to Phryne in payment for myself. But I give birth to passion no longer by shooting arrows, but by darting glances.

214.—SECUNDUS

On Statues of Loves

Look how the Loves delight in their spoils; look how, in childish triumph, they wear the weapons of the gods on their sturdy shoulders: the tambourine and thyrsus of Bacchus, the thunderbolt of Zeus, the shield of Ares and his plumed helmet, the quiver of Phoebus well stocked with arrows, the trident of the sea-god, and the club from the strong hands of Heracles.

What shall men's strength avail when Love has stormed heaven and Cypris has despoiled the immortals of their arms!

215.—PHILIPPUS

On the Same

Look how the Loves, having plundered Olympus, deck themselves in the arms of the immortals, exulting in their spoils. They bear the bow of Phoebus, the thunderbolt of Zeus, the shield and helmet of Ares, the club of Heracles, the three-pronged spear of the sea-god, the thyrsus of Bacchus, Hermes' winged sandals, and Artemis' torches. Mortals need not grieve that they must yield to the arrows of the Loves, if the gods have given them their arms wherewith to busk themselves.

On Statues of the Muses

THREE are we, the Muses who stand here; one bears in her hands a flute, another a harp, and the third a lyre. She who is the work of Aristocles holds the lyre, Ageladas' Muse the harp, and Canachas'¹ the musical reeds. The first is she who rules tone, the second makes melody of colour, and the third invented skilled harmony.²

221.—THEAETETUS SCHOLASTICUS

*On the Nemesis of the Athenians*³

I AM a white stone which the Median sculptor quarried with his stone-cutter's tools from the mountain where the rocks grow again,⁴ and he bore me across the sea to make of me images, tokens of victory over the Athenians. But when Marathon resounded with the Persian rout, and the ships voyaged on bloody waves, Athens, the mother of beautiful works, carved of me Adrasteia, the goddess who is the foe of arrogant men. I counter-balance vain hopes, and I am still a Victory to the Athenians, a Nemesis to the Assyrians.

¹ Canachus is the usual form. Aristocles was his brother, and all three artists were of the sixth century B.C.

² They presided respectively over the diatonic, chromatic, and enharmonic tetrachords. For these see "tetrachord" in Century Dictionary.

³ The Nemesis of Rhamnus was said to have been carved by Phidias from a block of marble brought by the Persians to use for a trophy. ⁴ This was a prevalent belief.

Thus, having escaped the burning heat of the autumnal dog-star, thou shalt in good time cross the hill. Take this counsel that Hermes gives thee.

¹ This and other epigrams (we have a large Latin collection of them) refer to statues of the garden god Priapus, who was represented with an erect membrum virile to avert the evil eye. The joke that he threatens thieves with it is always the same. There is no use glossing over it in rendering.

247.—NILUS SCHOLASTICUS

On a Satyr in Mosaic at Antioch

A. ALL Satyrs are fond of jeering, but tell me, thou too, why, looking at everyone, dost thou pour forth this laughter? B. I laugh because I marvel how, being put together out of all kinds of stones, I suddenly became a Satyr.

¹ Possibly from a thorn in his foot which he was trying to extract. Several works of art represent this.

251.—ANONYMOUS

On Eros and Anteros

Who fashioned a winged Love and set him opposite winged Love? Nemesis, taking vengeance on the bow with the bow, that he may suffer what he did; and he, the bold boy never daunted before, is crying as he tastes the bitter arrows, and thrice he spits in the deep folds of his bosom!³ Oh, most marvellous! One shall burn fire with fire, Love has touched Love to the quick.

¹ Pliny (xxxiii. 55, 156), quoting from this epigram, gives the artist's name as Antipater, from which it has been conjectured that the epigram is by Antipater.

² The epithet seems to be transferred from the sea to the sea-shore. ³ See Book XII. 229.

278.—BY THE SAME

On the Picture of Maria the Singer and Lyrist

SHE has the plectrum of the lyre, she has also the plectrum of love, and she beats with one the heart, with the other the lyre. Pityable are they to whom her mind does not unbend, but he whom she favours is a second Anchises, a second Adonis.¹ And if, O stranger, it is thy wish to hear her celebrated name and her country, she is Maria of Alexandria.

On the Lyre-playing Stone at Megara

As thou passest by Nisaea remember me, the musical stone; for when Alcahous was building his towered wall, then Phoebus lifted on his shoulder the building stone, laying down his Delphian lyre in me.² Hence I am a lyrist; strike me with a small pebble and get evidence of what I boast.

¹ Both beloved by Venus. •

² This implies that the stone was in some way hollow. According to Pausanias (I. xlii), Apollo, when helping Alcahous to build the wall, laid down his lyre on the stone. See, too, Ovid, Met. viii. 14.

WITH the money of Agathon did the people of Tegea build the bath here, a marvel to future generations too.

281.—ANONYMOUS

On a Bath at Praenetus in Bithynia

WHAT is now a bath was formerly no bath, but a rubbish ground, a place of excretion; but now it excels in splendour those delightful and lovely baths of which all men sing the praises. For Alexander, the bishop of Nicaea, the star of illustrious learning, built it at his own expense.

282.—PALLADAS

On a Painting of a Dancing Girl

RHODOCLEA is the tenth Muse and fourth Grace, the delight of men, the glory of the city. Her eyes and her feet are swift as the wind, and her skilled fingers are better than both Muses and Graces.

I AM Helladia of Byzantium, and here I stand where the people in spring celebrate the dance, here where the land is divided by the strait; for both continents praised my dancing.

On the Gilded Picture of a Female Lyrist

No one put gold on Anthusa, but the son of Cronos poured himself on her, as once on Danae. But he did not come near her body, for his mind was seized with shame, lest against his will he should consort with one of the Muses.

286.—BY THE SAME

On the Dancer Helladia

THE feminine nature excels in dancing: give way, ye young men! The Muse and Helladia laid down this law, the one because she first invented the rhythm of movement, the other because she reached perfection in the art.

287.—BY THE SAME

SOMEONE sung the lay of Hector, a new tune, and Helladia, donning a chlamys, accompanied the melody. In the dancing of this goddess of war there was both desire and terror, for with virile strength she mingled feminine grace.

On a Picture of the Dancer Iabania

On the Dancer Xenophon of Smyrna

WE thought we were looking on Bacchus himself when the old man¹ lustily led the Maenads in their furious dance, and played Cadmus tripping it in the fall of his years, and the messenger coming from the forest where he had spied on the rout of the Bacchantes, and frenzied Agave exulting in the blood of her son. Heavens! how divine was the man's acting!

290.—ANTIPATER OF THESSALONICA

On the Dancer Pylades

PYLADES put on the divinity of the frenzied god himself, when from Thebes he led the Bacchantes to the Italian stage, a delight and a terror to men, so full by his dancing did he fill all the city with the untempered fury of the demon. Thebes knows but of Euripides. Xenophon had played the four different parts mentioned.

HOMER, son of Meles, thou hast won eternal glory for Hellas and thy fatherland Colophon, and these two daughters didst thou beget by thy divine soul, writing from thy heart the twain tablets. The one sings the many wanderings of Odysseus in his homecoming, and the other the Trojan war.

On a Statue of Anacreon

Look at old Anacreon, loaded profusely with wine, in a distorted attitude on the rounded basis. See how the greybeard, with a swimming leer in his amorous eyes, trails the robe that descends to his ankles. As one stricken by wine he has lost one of his two shoes, but in the other his wrinkled foot is fast. He is singing either of lovely Bathyllus or of Megisteus, holding uplifted in his hand his love-lorn lyre. But, father Dionysus, guard him; it is not meet that the servant of Bacchus fall by the hand of Bacchus.

EPIGRAMS ON THE STATUES OF ATHLETES IN THE
HIPPODROME AT CONSTANTINOPLE¹

335.—On Porphyrius

THE Emperor and the faction erected the statue of Porphyrius, son of Calchas, loaded with many crowns won by skilled toil, the youngest of all the drivers as well as the best, and winner of as many victories as any. This man's statue should have been of gold, not of bronze like the others.

336.—On the Same

FOUR times before did the people shout distinctly, desiring Porphyrius, the son of Calchas;² but he, taking up the reins and his driving belt at the right of the Emperor's seat,³ drives, starting from there, urging on his team, and in the middle of his racing

¹ A certain number of these found their way into the Palatine MS (Book XV.). •

² This apparently means that the people had clamoured for him during previous races in which he took no part.

³ Here stood the porch of the Blues, for which faction Porphyrius drove.

¹ It was the practice for a victorious charioteer to change his team with another of his own faction and to race him. This was called a "diversium."

BOOK XVI. EPIGRAMS 337-339

career his bronze statue was erected with the first down on his cheeks. If this honour came to him quicker than years, yet it came late after victories won by much labour, after many crowns.

337.—On the Same

CYTHEREA was in love with Anchises and Selene with Endymion, and now it seems that Victory is in love with Porphyrius, who, ever changing his own team for that of another driver of his faction,¹ was often crowned in the races that lasted all day without labour on his part, his companion only following him.

338.—On the Same

VICTORY gave to thee, Porphyrius, while still young, this honour which time has given to others late in life and grudgingly; for, having counted the performances that won thee many crowns, she found them superior to those of old drivers. Why! did not the rival faction, in admiration of thy glory, applaud thee loudly? Blessed is the most free people of the Blues, to whom our great Emperor granted thee as a gift.²

339.—On the Same

THE valiant to the valiant; the wise to the wise; the sons of victory, the Blues, to the son of victory, Porphyrius, erected this statue; for he glories in the two victories he gained by the interchanged teams, the team he gave and the team he received.³

² It appears from this that the Emperor sometimes apportioned the drivers between the factions.

340.—On the Same

To others when they have retired, but to Porphyrius alone while still racing, did the Emperor give this honour. For often he drove his own horses to victory and then took in hand the team of his adversary, and was again crowned. Hence arose a keen rivalry on the part of the Greens, hence a shout of applause for him, O King, who will give joy both to Blues and to Greens.

341.—On the Same

THE votes of all erected near to Victory the statue of me, Porphyrius, while still driving. For my own faction demanded the honour, and the opposite one desired to have me again, renouncing their hostility. I got the best of the other drivers by my cleverness, giving them in exchange for their own better horses, and then showing them to be my inferiors.

342.—On the Same

343.—On the Same

IN a brazen image the Lord of the Latins set up the victorious driver, strong himself as brass, as being skilled and dear to the Blues; but we shall see many statues yet of Porphyrius erected because of his victories.

349.—On the Same

OUR Sovereign Lord, who grants this favour to the Greens, gave to Porphyrius after the races an honour worthy of his performances. For often the people, their attention turned to exploits more than usually brilliant, praised Calliopas¹ and again Porphyrius, the two names that belonged to this brazen hero, who won the meed of valour in the chariot-races.

350.—On the Same

Nor only did divine Victory crown thee on the race-course, but in war, too, she showed thee to be victorious, then when the Emperor, with the Greens to assist him, warred with the furiously raging enemy of the throne; when the savage tyrant² fell, as Rome was on the point of perishing, and the light of Latin liberty came back. Therefore the Monarch gave to the Greens the privileges they formerly had, and the artist wrought and polished thy image, Porphyrius.

351.—On the Same

THE crowns from the hostile faction too, Porphyrius, are unimpeachable witnesses of thy exploits. For ever in the race thou conquerest one after the other all the rival charioteers, a mere toy for thy skilled hands. Therefore hast thou alone gained an unwonted mark of honour, a bronze statue in the grounds of each faction.

THE sculptor made the bronze like unto the charioteer, but would that he could have fashioned also the vastness of his skill, its vastness and beauty, a thing that when Nature brought forth late in her life she swore, "I cannot travail again." She swore it with truthful lips, for to Porphyrius first and alone she gave all her gifts.

353.—On the Same

IF envy could be at rest and chose¹ to judge the contests, all men testify to the achievements of Porphyrius. 354.—On the Same

THRICE-DESIRED Porphyrius, the city reverencing thee honours thee with a bronze statue. She would have wished it to be gold, but Nemesis was before her eyes. But if thy well-wishers, the faction of the Greens, never cease celebrating thy wonted victories, they are every man of them living statues in thy honour, and all gold is worthless in comparison with them.

356.—On the Same

TIME is the cause of the honours of others, and those who are judged worthy of them, owing to their victories, do not lack grey hairs, but lack that virtue on which glory depends. Porphyrius alone twice gained the splendour of such gifts, not boasting many decades of years, but many hundreds of victories, and all of them akin to the Graces.

CYTHEREA loved Anchises, and Selene Endymion, so it is fabled by men of old time. But now a new fable shall be sung, that Victory, it seems, fell in love with the eyes and chariot of Porphyrius.²

WHEN a youth thou didst conquer thy elders, and now, in thy later years, thou conquerest the young drivers of racing four-horse chariots. Having accomplished thy six decades of years, thou hast won, Calliopas, a statue for thy victories, by command of the Emperor, so that thy renown may abide for future ages. Would that thy body were as immortal as thy renown.

VICTORY, the charioteer, dedicated to thee, Calliopus, this brazen image of thy divine form, because in thy old age thou didst conquer men in the prime of youth by thy force in subduing horses, and in thy youth didst conquer thy elders by skill. Hence the faction of the Blues, the children of liberty, erected two prizes for thee, one for thy art and the other for thy force.

360.—On the Same

THY old age has surpassed thy youth in victories, and thou didst ever overcome all, Calliopus. Therefore do the Emperor and this free faction again raise this honour for thee, a monument of thy skill and valour.

361.—On the Same

O CALLIOPAS, thou who raisest applause in the theatre, this is thy portrait which a swarm of much-envied crowns raises to thee. For neither did any charioteer cozen thee, nor did any hard-mouthed horse's jaws refuse to obey thy reins. Alone hast thou gained the reward of victory; verily the opinion of all is that by contending thou leavest prizes for others.¹

362.—On the Same

O CALLIOPAS, celebrated for thy achievements, what does it profit thee that thy labours are rewarded with a bronze statue by the Emperor, by this myriad-throated faction, by the whole city, considering that even the hands of the hostile faction applauded thy exploits?

WITS are the mothers of a winner's honours, not the force of youth, nor swift driving, nor favourable occasion. May thy mind, Faustinus, be propitious, which takes precedence of all these things, and whose companion is immortal Victory.

364.—On the Same

FORMERLY in thy youth, Faustinus, the minds of the old men feared thee, and now the strength of the young men trembles before thine in thy advanced years. The first place was ever gained for thee by thy toil, which brings honour to thee, an old man among the youths, a youth among the old men.

365.—On Constantinus

SINCE Constantinus entered the house of Hades the race-course is full of despondency, and pleasure has abandoned the spectators, nor even in the streets does one see the old friendly strife.¹

366.—On the Same

THE citizens, mourning thee, erected thy image, Constantinus, to be a delight to thy departed spirit. When the people confirmed thy fame on thy death, the Emperor, too, was mindful of thy exertions after thy decease, because the abusive² art of driving has perished, ceasing finally with thee as it began with thee.

WHILE Constantinus yet lived, the city deemed a bronze statue a small reward for him, for the whole people knew how many crowns in his long racing career he had set on his head because of glorious Victory. But when he died, in regret for him, it erected this his dear form, so that posterity, too, should be kept mindful of his achievements.

368.—On the Same

THE Blues and Greens, always at variance, shouted aloud one concordant decision, that thou, Constantinus, shouldst have on thy tomb this ornament, acclaimed by all, pleasing to all.

369.—On the Same

IMMORTAL Constantinus, thy course, high in the light, has traversed the boundaries of east, west, south, and north. Let none say thou art dead, for even Hades cannot lay his hand on the invincible.

charioteers. For through all the long time he raced he never failed, but ended by a victory, as he had formerly begun by a victory. When he was a young man the older drivers who had won crowns on the course appointed him president of the races.

372.—On the Same

THIS is a gift for thee, Constantinus, from thy nurse, Victory, who hath followed thee from thy childhood all through thy life. For in the five times ten years thou didst pass on the race-course thou didst never light on thy equal, or even on one a little inferior to thee; but while yet a lad and beardless thou didst conquer men, when grown up thou didst conquer those of thine age, and in thine old age the young men.

373.—On the Same

THE city wished Constantinus to wield the reins for ever; she wished it, but Nature refused to grant her desire. Therefore she bethought her of erecting this statue to console her for her lost love, that time and oblivion should not envelop him, but that he might remain, the desire of his lovers, the envy of charioteers, an ornament to the course, and a tale for future generations to tell; and that one in time to come, looking on inferior drivers, should bless the former age that looked on him.

374.—On the Same

CONSTANTINUS having won five-and-twenty races on one morning, changed his team with his rival's, and taking the same horses that he had formerly beaten, won twenty-one times with them. Often there was a great strife between the two factions as to which was to have him, and they gave him two robes to choose from.¹

375.—On the Same

AWAKE, Constantinus! Why dost thou sleep the brazen sleep? The people long to see thy team on the course, and the charioteers, lacking thy instruction, sit just like orphaned children.

376.—On Uranius

URANIUS, who had distinguished himself in the service of both the factions, gained glory from both while still driving. His first reward came from the Greens, and stands near their stand. They also, when he had retired from racing, brought him back again to the chariots, mindful of his former victory.

377.—On the Same

THE Emperor, when Uranius had retired from the race-course after gaining splendid victories, made him mount again his victorious chariot, doing a favour to all the factions; for the city has no desire for the races without Uranius. Therefore, admiring him for his first victories and his last, the city erected his statue during the second period of his career.

PORPHYRIUS, the wonder of the Blues, having conquered every charioteer on earth, does well to rise and race towards heaven. For he, victorious over every driver here below, mounts to join the sun on its course.

381.—On the Same

THIS Porphyrius, son of Calchas, with the first down on his cheeks, held the reins for the faction of the Blues. I marvel how some artist's hand has painted his horses as if alive. Really, if he whips them again, I think he will be carried again to victory.

² THIS and the following iambic epigrams were, as a scholiast tells us, not on statues of the charioteers, but on pictures on the roof of the Emperor's throne-room (πρόκυψις), which I take to mean here not a room in the palace but the Emperor's box on the race-course.

Look on the work of the architect of this house. For if it had not been covered by a strong roof Faustinus, the ancient glory of the Greens, would have mounted racing to heaven, so like the life are he and his team. Take the roof off and he will reach the sky.

383.—On the Same

THIS is Faustinus, the former charioteer, after engaging whom the faction of the Greens never knew what defeat was in the race. He was old, as you see, but in his strength he was as a young man, and was never once vanquished.

384.—On Constantinus, the Charioteer of the Whites

CONSTANTINUS, wielding the reins of the White faction, were he not restrained by the solidity of the house, would conquer those three, getting to heaven first. You would see him mount the heavens without breath. The artist persuades me that I see him alive.

• 385.—On the Same

THE hand of man knows how to give birth to men long ago dead, for Julianus is as strong here as of old, guiding this way and that the reins of the Red faction. Now he stands painted here on high, himself and his chariot; his hand awaits the signal. Give him a winning-post.¹
